

Medicated Ghees

Medicated ghees are ghrut has, that are the combination of ghee (prepared from milk) and the medicinal ingredients used. Ghee have a special quality to imbibe the properties of ingredients without losing its medicinal value. The medicinal ingredients are added in the form of kwathas, kalkas or the juices of the medicinal plants. Ghees are mixed with these ingredients as per the requisition and processed at a stipulated temperature. Generally the ghees are supposed to be used internally. The process is carried out under the guidance and supervision of a technical person to ensure consistent quality of the product. The quality control section ensure the purity of ghee used before the Preparation of ghrut has. These are packed in bottles. The final product generally get solidified on cooling and has the colour, odour and taste of ingredients used in the preparation.
